In addition to language audio selection, our embedded MP3 Player has pause, play and volume controls so you can easily stop the audio to slow things down or discuss the book and then click the MP3 Player's play button to resume the audio reading

Note that in Manual Mode, audio and text are independent of one another so you have four text-audio language options available. Also, it is a continuous reading not locked to page so the user needs to manually advance pages if they wish to keep up with the reading.

When you select a different language in Manual Mode, the language text immediately changes but the redisplayed page remains the same page number. If the audio is playing during the language selection, it will stop and restart from the beginning of the book (page 1 intro) but in the newly selected language.
